

Book Nook

Welcome to the newest corner of our school newsletter where stories come alive! Each week we will feature book reviews, student and staff suggestions, and hidden literary gems for all ages. Whether you're a fiction fanatic, a mystery lover, or a fan of facts, there's something here for you. This week's book review is from our Head of Student Development, Bernie, who is currently reading 'The Eve Illusion' by Tom and Giovanna Fletcher. "As a lover of the dystopian genre, this book is right up my alley. It is the second instalment of the series 'The Eve of Man Trilogy.' The story is based upon a girl called Eve; the only girl to have been born in the last 50 years, and she is the only hope for the future of mankind. Having thoroughly enjoyed the first book, this was a fantastic sequel to follow on. For lovers of the Hunger Games, or The Silo Trilogy, I recommend this series!"

WOW WORK

This week we would like to show appreciation for one of our year 11 students who, around their exams, have been an excellent help and role model in our forest school area. Well done!

Forest School and World Environment Day!

This week we have eased back into Forest School, discussing up coming ways we are improving our site. We have been dismantling pallets to upcycle into a decking area and signs for different sections of our Forest School, as well a possibly a bench. For the Forest School rewards, we are planting seeds to grow in our new "Wild Growth for Wildlife" bank. We will continue to promote sustainability and recycling through this term and going forward by setting up composting for the Sensory Garden. Hopefully we can all appreciate the Garden by investing time in it now for long term enjoyment over the next few years!

Y11 Exams

Our wonderful Year 11 pupils have been doing so well with their exams. We continue to wish them the best with the next 2 weeks.
