Welcome

Welcome to Cambian Pengwern College, an inclusive and vibrant learning community for young people aged 16 to 25 years old with a learning disability and complex needs.

It is a privilege for me to lead our wonderful college here in North Wales, where young people from England and Wales benefit from the space and calm of the countryside as well as the excellent road and rail links to town and cities.

As an independent specialist college for more than 40 years, we recognise the challenges that young people and their families face as life starts to look different through adolescence and into adulthood. We are absolutely clear that it is our job to support these challenges so that our young people leave us with the skills and confidence to live their adult lives in their adult world, with choice and control.

We have an excellent track record of enabling young people to gain the experience they need to live more independently and achieve their personal best, whatever that looks like. We are committed to person-centred learning programmes that are supported by a range of therapies, fantastic on-site facilities and off-site partnerships. Our highly skilled multidisciplinary support staff and tutors enable an excellent personal, social and vocational experience.

We have many events throughout the year and always an open door so please do come and see us – we look forward to meeting you.

Developing Skills and Interests

An important part of helping our learners to achieve their personal best is encouraging them to develop interests and participate in a variety of activities in different environments.

Students Voice

Students are encouraged and supported to express their views on the things that are important to them about life in college. Their input shapes the curriculum, staff recruitment, opportunities for personal development and the support they receive.

This is achieved through student tutorials comprising of 1:1 meetings to discuss anything related to college life, on and off-site advocacy services and the Principal's open door policy.

Students Council

The council consists of elected learners who are chosen to represent the views of all students.

The representatives meet regularly to initiate projects and develop new ideas.

They solve problems, influence and make changes while acting in the best interests of all learners. They ensure that learner views are listened to and respected at all times.

Annually they are involved in promoting and organising events such as the May Fayre, Summer Ball and fund raising for local charities.

“Young people are supported to express their views and opinions through a variety of individualised communication methods, including Picture Exchange Communication System (PECS), Makaton, and their own spoken language. This inclusive approach ensures each young person is heard and understood in a way that suits their individual needs. The effectiveness of this is further enriched by the diversity of the care staff team, who bring a wide range of cultural perspectives and languages.”

The Wow Board

Our Wow board celebrates our student's incidental learning, which are achievements that may not usually be recognised. We like to call these "magic moments."

- In his first few weeks in college, Lewis had struggled to integrate with his peers. However, over the last few days, he has really made the effort and has been friendly and kind to his peers. Well done Lewis.
- In the previous year Harry had really struggled to attend his sessions. This term he has attended many sessions and really joined in!
- Molly had previously been unsure about her D of E sessions and was reluctant to join in. In the last few weeks, she has really made the effort to join in and has even encouraged her peers to be brave and join in too! Well done.
- So far Huw hasn't really initiated any conversation with his peers. However, when his pottery session had finished, he thought another student was about to walk down to the main hall. Huw said- 'wait you can walk down with me', this is great to see, well done.
- Halle had been struggling to attend her sessions last year. But this term she's been attending regularly joining in with activities and tasks. Brilliant progress well done.
- In tutorials J had said that he wasn't going to go to his work experience in the tuck shop. He was brave and tried the session and really enjoyed it. Well done for trying something new.
- Although he was attending sessions, Alex had struggled to join in and stay in his sessions. Recently in a pottery session he was asked to identify three different colours. Using a real object of reference, he was able to verbally do so. Alex also attempted to copy the signing too.
- Jayden has had some great engagement recently. He has joined in some sessions really well and even completed part of his accreditation workbooks. He had really struggled to positively engage in sessions but has really worked hard on this with his staff and has made some great progress. Well done!
- Rachel, feeling hungry and being an independent young lady, signed toast to her staff and made her way to the kitchen. She made toast in a safe and independent manner, with just some verbal prompts. Great engagement and independence Rachel, good work.
- Sam has struggled to initiate and hold conversation with his peers, usually directing conversation and questions to his staff. However, recently in a pottery session, Sam and another learner worked on creating a personalised cup poster. The two friends got on with their work independently. They worked together for over an hour without any staff prompts or instructions, chatting and sharing ideas, helping each other to produce a great piece of joint work. Sam said "I like working with Josh because he is good fun, he helped me and has good ideas". Well done guys great team work and independence.
- Josh worked really well on a shared project with another learner who needed encouragement to talk to less familiar people. He put him at ease by being friendly and encouraged him to work independently. Together they completed a great poster. Great team work and independence guys!
- Arthur had always worked on his own in the café, but recently, with the help of his support, he was motivated to join in with another student to dry the pots as part of a team. Great team work Arthur!
- Alex visited the college tuck shop for the first time recently. He had not had the confidence to visit the shop before. He engaged with his peers who were completing their work experience at the time. Well done Alex and great work from the work experience group for being so welcoming.
- Jake had always worked on his own, but recently, he joined a being active activity and shared some time on the swing with another student. They had a great time and were laughing and engaging together for over 5 minutes. Amazing progress Jake!
- Jayden has had some great engagement recently, he has joined in some sessions really well and even completed part of his accreditation workbooks. He had really struggled to positively engage in sessions but has really worked hard on this with his staff and made some great progress. Well done!

Looking to the Future

- ADav gained the independence and social skills to be able to access a placement at “Kit out the kids” a clothing recycling project in her local community.
- ADar gained the skills to be able to attend a local community hub called “Sense” where he is able to socialise and take part in activities with others.
- LDod has gained the accreditation and skills to be able to continue to work 2 days voluntary at NCAR, a local animal rescue centre.
- SPar gained the skills to be more tolerant of others, this will support him to be able to access a timetable of activities at his residential placement.
- OPar gained skills to be able to socialise and interact with others without grabbing. This has enabled him to be able to gain voluntary work at Cunliffe and Erlas, garden projects; and transition into supported living.
- RCav gained skills to be able to socialise and interact with others without becoming frustrated and her voice becoming loud. This has enabled her to gain a placement at a day service and will be moving into assisted living.
- VKum improved her engagement, interaction with others and gardening skills to enable her to gain voluntary work at Cunliffe Centre and Erlas garden projects.
- AMcB gained the skills to be more tolerant of others and take part in activities for longer periods of time, this will support him to be able to access a timetable of activities at his residential placement.

Neo's Story

Neo had been out of formal education and not attended his previous school for over a year before enrolling at Pengwern college. Transition back to a learning environment proved difficult at first. When he initially joined, he would often sit outside of sessions, hesitant to engage and struggling to reintegrate into the educational setting.

Neo worked closely with his staff to explore different sessions and gradually find a curriculum that suited his needs. Initially he was reluctant to share his thoughts, but with patience and a variety of communication and therapy interventions offered by Pengwern staff, Neo decided he would like to try animal care. This collaborative approach allowed him to feel more comfortable participating in sessions, communicating with staff and peers, and following instructions. His ability to manage his anxieties and emotions has vastly improved, enabling him to engage more fully with his education.

Now a second-year student with a diagnosis of ASD, Neo has demonstrated remarkable growth, particularly in his confidence, independence, and engagement with his learning environment, and has thrived in his new session choices. Despite his initial struggles, his progress has been very encouraging.

One of the key factors in Neo's success has been his willingness to express his thoughts and feelings to the staff who work closely with him. By trying out various sessions and activities, Neo and his team identified a flexible and person-centred schedule that aligned with both his interests and personal goals. This process gave him the confidence to shape his educational experience in a way that worked best for him.

As the year progressed, Neo's attendance became exemplary, and he consistently demonstrated increased independence in both his decision-making and participation. He discovered a passion for media and expressed an interest in external work experience at TAPE (a community-based film, media and music hub), an area where he has thrived. His successful transition into this placement highlights his growing ability to adapt to new environments and work collaboratively with others.

Neo now attends all his sessions regularly, showing a clear enjoyment for his college experience. His confidence has soared, and he no longer experiences the same levels of anxiety that previously hindered his participation. As a result, Neo's prospects for voluntary employment after his time at Pengwern have significantly improved. His long-term goal - to acquire voluntary work in a field of his choice - is now an achievable and viable objective.

With continued support and his growing independence, Neo is well on his way to making a successful transition from Pengwern. His hard work, determination, and resilience, along with the dedicated efforts of the staff who have supported him have set him up for a bright and successful future.

Well done, Neo, and congratulations to everyone involved in supporting his progress!
