

Day out to Stokesay Castle

On Thursday 8th May, we went to Stokesay Castle, one of the best fortified manor houses remaining in the UK. Stokesay was built in the 1280s by Lawrence, a wealthy wool merchant of Ludlow.

We did a 'treasure hunt' which involved staff and students checking places off on a list and photographing themselves there as evidence. Many of the rooms are home to house martins and swifts which fly in and out of the windows.

All the students enjoyed running around to be the first team to check off all the places on their list, almost as much as their Subway breakfast beforehand.
